The World Investment Forum is a high-level, multi-stakeholder event that facilitates dialogue and action on the world’s emerging investment-related challenges. With its ties to United Nations Member States, the World Investment Forum is able to bring together a broad coalition of investment stakeholders at the highest level that influence the global investment landscape.

THE FORUM

- Shapes the future agenda for policymaking in investment for development
- Serves as a launch pad for major international initiatives to address current and emerging challenges in the area of investment for development
- Provides crucial answers on how investors in developed and developing countries can face emerging challenges and opportunities
THE 2016 FORUM

- Showcases company solutions to today’s sustainable development challenges
- Facilitates investment deals in emerging and frontier markets
- Offers networking opportunities with a broad range of investment stakeholders and benefits from one-to-one meetings, including with Heads of State and Government, and ministers from 193 United Nations Member States
- Connects to a global audience through the Forum’s diverse participants, broadcast events and global media coverage
